Monday, October 12, at

This year's festival begins with a virtual visit with NEA Big Read: 2020 Fox Cities Reads author Kao Kalia Yang, postponed from April.

Join us online on Sunday, October 11, at 6:00 pm. Or meet her at another virtual meeting on Monday, October 12, at Find the links to these, as well as all other festival events, at www.foxcitiesbookfestival.org If you have any trouble connecting, feel free to call your local public library for assistance.

Ms. Yang's The Latehomecomer was the perfect book for us to read together. She is also the author of The Song Poet and the children's picture book A Map into the World. Kao Kalia Yang is a Hmong-American.

Her story is a moving and inspirational tale. Find links to interviews and more at <https://foxcitiesbookfestival.org/who-is-kao-kalia-yang/>

Fox Cities Book Festival 2020 Schedule October 11 — October 18

An Online Festival

In the interest of public health, this year's Fox Cities Book Festival will take place online. We invite you to visit with the authors on your device or smartphone. Find links to the events on our website:

www.foxcitiesbookfestival.org

While current circumstances are making it difficult for us to provide the festival as we usually do, we hope you are able to join us online to meet with the authors, ask them questions, and enjoy their work.

The 2020 Fox Cities Book Festival is dedicated in memory of our beloved board member and author Christopher "Tuffer" Kunz.

Tuffer will never be forgotten.

All events are online. Go to www.foxcitiesbookfestival.org for links to these events.
